Bio:

I'm this Cuban-Irish-American number, and I've been described as a human contradiction. I believe this to be a very accurate description.

I'm an artist. My mind is kind of like a Picasso; it takes a moment to make out. It's hard to understand. There's a lot of abstract thought inside.

I read like a poem. Not the kind about falling in love or walking on the beach, but the kind about the beautiful, imperfect things in life. I guess that's because that's all any of us really are, in my opinion.

I'm a deep thinker, but I'm outgoing, too. I'm really not very serious at all. I come off that way on paper. Put it down to human complexity.
